

AMERICANS WANT TO Support Farmers

A recent survey by Greenberg Quinlan Rosner shows that a majority of Americans want small- and mid-sized farms run by a diverse group of farmers who steward the environment, conserve natural resources and grow a range of fruits, vegetables and other organic crops.

57% of Americans think the federal government should provide more funding and support for small- and mid-sized farms.

85% of Americans support increased opportunities for beginning, socially disadvantaged, veteran farmers and ranchers in conservation programs.

82% of Americans support expanding crop insurance to cover fruits, vegetables and nuts, as well as organic crops.

53% of Americans think there should be more government oversight of industrial-scale animal farms.

52% of Americans would support measures to prohibit new concentrated animal feeding operations (CAFOs) from being built.

58% of Americans support the continuation of conservation programs that help farmers maintain environmental quality of their land.

AMERICANS WANT TO Fund the Farm Bill

A recent survey by Greenberg Quinlan Rosner shows that a majority of Americans want to continue funding the Farm Bill at current levels, and they feel the government should support food assistance programs at home and abroad.

85% of Americans want to maintain or increase farm bill funding.

60% believe the government should be doing more to meet the needs of people.

61% feel that funding for SNAP, or the food stamp program, should be maintained.

80% favor an increase in funding for food assistance overseas to nations experiencing natural disasters.

67% believe the agriculture industry has a responsibility to produce food in a sustainable way that ensures America will be able to produce healthy food for future generations.

67% believe the government should require people who receive SNAP to meet minimum work requirements in order to receive benefits.